FAITH

A dramatic sky scene with a low sun and many shooting stars. The sun is a bright yellow circle in the center-left of the frame, partially obscured by dark, heavy clouds. Numerous shooting stars, or meteors, streak across the sky from the upper right towards the lower left, leaving long, glowing trails of light. The foreground shows a field of tall grass and some trees in the distance, silhouetted against the bright sky.

1 Peter 5:9

“But now all I could see was myself, bowed down in the middle of the battlefield too weak to stand. The "fiery darts of the devil" flying all around. And so clearly the illustration made sense. Now, more than ever is when I need my Shield of Faith...And faith is, so beautifully put, what protects you from the enemy so you CAN keep fighting. If you haven't experienced some sort of trauma, if the Lord lingers, you will at some point. This world is wicked and ugly and we aren't meant to live here forever, or even WANT to. And Satan will NOT cut you a break. He smells the blood in the water and he will come for you. Don't wait till your face down, gasping, to start building your armory. Get right with the Lord now...You're fighting whether you know it or not, just make sure on the right side.”
