Why So Unhappy?

We live in a world where so many struggle with depression and stress. Daytime television programs market the latest relief therapy on talk shows and of course there are the twenty-four hour shopping channels. Commercials market the latest anti-depressant drug during evening shows as well as internet ads popping up on your favorite news page. It seems, we as an international brotherhood of human beings, are in search of happiness.

This search even sends some toward self-destructive behavior up to and including terroristic acts. How could we come to the point that we physically injure or take the life of another and claim satisfaction? In fact there is no satisfaction and the blood thirsty cannot be quenched because there is no joy in destruction. There is no joy in revenge. These behaviors create an appetite that cannot be satisfied.

Though you may not find yourself at the extreme point of terrorism, you may find destructive behavior encompassing you. Spiritual terrorism is destructive to one's self and those all around. This is executed with a different kind of bomb. A simple sentence of criticism or mockery can destroy years of good communication. There is also the heat seeking missile of the assumptive statement of truth leading to an incorrect conclusion. For example, "The captain is not drunk today." This is in fact true. It does however, lead one to believe that this is unusual and the captain is in the habit of being drunk. The same stealth like bomb can be used by a simple shrug of the shoulders or rolling of the eyes after a question. We have such good defense of this behavior by saying, "I was only joking." The Bible, however, has something to say about words manipulated for hurt. "As a mad man who casteth firebrands, arrows, and death, So is the man that deceives his neighbour, and says, I was only joking" (Proverbs 26:18-19).

God certainly has a sense of humor because He created us and we have it. When we look at nature we can be amused at the shapes and behavior of the animals. A sense of humor, does not need to manifest itself by injuring others. Could it be that I am unhappy because I create unhappiness in others by my communications?

Is it possible that one who creates stress in others, even jokingly, has fallen victim to jealousy? Jealousy can be used by the Devil to create a world of one's own. This is the world of "poor pitiable me". Jealousy creates a victim mentality that says, "Everyone is better off than me, so I have a right to pull you down". Jealousy also claims it's owner to be the center of the universe. Being the center on one's own universe puts one inevitably on a course for a big bang. If this behavior is left uninterrupted the bang can be devastating and ruin a business or split a congregation.

So how do we interrupt the cycle? The first step is to stop making excuses about abrasive behavior. I have no right to expect others to deal with me just because "That's the way I am." God expects more from me than sour worldly behavior. God knows I can change or otherwise He would not have told me to repent. It's time to change old habits.

We can get in habits of jealousy, anger and selfishness. The second step is to train ourselves to have happy thoughts. God has given us the key to retrain thinking. "Finally, brothers, whatever is true, whatever is honorable, whatever is just, whatever is pure, whatever is lovely, whatever is commendable, if there is any excellence, if there is anything worthy of praise, think about these things. What you have learned and received and heard and seen in me—practice these things, and the God of peace will be with you" (Philippians 4:8-9).

Start with whatever is true this week. That means no mental gymnastics over what people say to us. No jumping to conclusions or trying to read body language. This also means I will communicate clearly and not play games with the understanding of others. "But above all things, my brethren, swear not, neither by heaven, neither by the earth, neither by any other oath: but let your yea be yea; and your nay, nay; lest ye fall into condemnation" (James 5:12). Clear communication will not rob me of humor. Trying to communicate clearly can have it's own problems in which we find some humor. For the rest of the week, take the dare to only allow thoughts of truth pass through your mind. Life will become simpler and suddenly there will be a peace that may lift a huge burden of unhappiness from your life. It's not a drug or therapy or any other external thing. It is a decision to start thinking in the pattern that God has directed. Watch the joy overflow your cup.
