

The Prattmont Church of Christ is just what the name suggests, a church that belongs to Christ. We are not a denomination; we are simply a group of Christians trying very hard to practice the teachings of our Head, Jesus Christ. The New Testament offers a complete pattern for what each local church should be like—its organization, its worship, its work, etc. We are committed to following that pattern. We cordially invite you to attend our services. We would also welcome any comments or questions about this bulletin.

Proper Terminology

adapted from an article by Aude McKee

Do not say: “Church of Christ people.”

It is better to say: “Christians” (Acts 11:26), or “God’s children” (1 John 3:1-2), or “saints” (Romans 1:7), etc.

Do not say: “Church of Christ doctrine.”

It is better to say: “New Testament doctrine” (2 Corinthians 3:6; Hebrews 8:8-12), or “doctrine of Christ” (2 John 1:9), or “doctrine of God” (Titus 2:10), or “apostles’ doctrine” (Acts 2:42).

Do not say: “Church of Christ preachers.”

It is better to say: “gospel preachers” (Romans 10:15; 2 Timothy 1:10-11), or “evangelists” (2 Timothy 4:5).

Do not say: “I am trying to teach him/her our position.”

It is better to say: “I am trying to teach him/her the word of God” (Acts 13:5; 18:11).

Do not say: “Come, let us hear what the church of Christ teaches.”

It is better to say: “Come, let us hear the word of the Lord” (Acts 13:44).

Do not say: “I am trying to convert him/her to the church of Christ.”

It is better to say: “I am trying to convert him/her to the Lord” (Acts 11:21; 2 Corinthians 3:16).

Do not say: “The church of Christ teaches this or that.”

It is better to say: “The Bible, or the New Testament, teaches this or that.”

Do not say: “Congregations of the church of Christ.”

It is better to say: “churches of Christ” (Romans 16:16).

Do not say: “The church of Christ is right.”

It is better to say: “The word of God is right, and the local church of which I am a member is making a sincere effort to conform to the word of God in its worship, work, organization, teaching, and practice” (Acts 2:42; 1 Corinthians 4:17; 7:17).

In the days of Nehemiah, Jewish men married women of Ashdod, Ammon, and Moab. As a result, children born out of those unions spoke half in the speech of Ashdod, and could not speak purely the language of God’s chosen people. Speech, such as that listed above under “do not say,” is the product of the influence of denominationalism, and is not pure, Biblical language. We must always be careful in our speech to convey that which is truth. Those expressions listed under “do not say” are language which is foreign to the teaching of the New Testament, and it will lead people to have a denominational concept of the church.

It is true that every departure from the truth in years past has been characterized by an unscriptural terminology. A good rule always to follow is this: If you cannot describe a practice of a group with Bible language, used in exactly the same sense in which the inspired writers used it, then that practice is unscriptural!

For example, if you cannot explain the organization of a religious group with New Testament language, correctly used, then that group is unscripturally organized.

So, let’s be sure we keep our practice scriptural and then let’s be sure that we describe scriptural things with language that is in harmony with scripture.

“Oh come, let us worship and bow down; let us kneel before the LORD our Maker. For He is our God, and we are the people of His pasture, and the sheep of His hand” (Psa. 95:6-7).
